I am trying to write a file by programmatically, and I want to store the file name in a variable. I used System.IO.File.WriteAllText(environment.GetFolderPath("appdata") & "\\software\\folder", "txt", False) to write the text to file, but it doesn't write the file with a single name. If I write the file name manually, it works as I want: Dim name As String = "Software" System.IO.File.WriteAllText(environment.GetFolderPath("appdata") & "\\software\\folder", "txt", False) This is how I want it: Dim filepath As String = environment.GetFolderPath("appdata") & "\\software\\folder" System.IO.File.WriteAllText(filepath, "The text that I want to write to file", False) data from a remote database and then adding it to all the tables in my SqlConnection I'm using a SqlConnection to get data from a remote database. I have stored the data in a List and I want to use that List to populate each database table. So far I've started with the following function and it successfully returns a list of data but how can I assign that data to each table? public List GetEvents() { using (var conn = new SqlConnection(ConfigurationManager.ConnectionStrings["conn"].ConnectionString)) { conn.Open(); using (var cmd = conn.CreateCommand()) { cmd.CommandText = "select * from b_event"; using (var rdr = cmd.ExecuteReader()) { var list = rdr.ToList(); } } } return list; } A: You can assign data to database tables with command.ExecuteNonQuery: public List GetEvents() { using (var conn = new SqlConnection(ConfigurationManager.ConnectionStrings["conn"].ConnectionString)) { conn.Open(); using (var cmd = conn.CreateCommand())
